IMMIGRANTS ENFORCES LAW

Extra Efforts Will Be Made to Turn State Treasurer Insisted on Payment

St. Paul, Minn., March 15.—The Canadian Northern railway in spite of desperate squirming has been forced to pay heavy penalty to the state of Minnesota for failure to pay its taxes by the time prescribed by law. The road's retarded earnings in Minnesota in 1906 amounting to $385,286, the tax on this at 1.21 per cent, has been assessed by the Canadian Northern company at Toronto, Feb. 6, that the tax was due on or before March 1. The money did not come, and 15 days later sent a second notice, but the tax still remained unpaid.

Penalty Threatened.

Finally on the last day of February H. B. Dinehart telephoned Hector Bagge of Minneapolis, who is president of the Canadian Northern Co.'s organization in Minnesota, that if the tax was not paid that day a penalty of per cent. $6000, would be charged over the tax would be accepted. Mr. Dinehart made the wires hot with messages to Toronto for the money to be sent by wire that day for payment on the tax, but something went wrong and the treasurer did not receive the tax till March 4. The treasurer insisted upon a 10 per cent. penalty to be paid. Baxendale pleaded and threatened in vain, then desperation he appealed to Governor Macdon. The latter decided that Treasurer Dinehart had simply obeyed the law and it was up to the Canadian Northern to pay the extra amount demanded. The railroad company has finally

Strathcona Young Men's Clubs Give A Banquet

Enjoyable Time Spent Last Night at Young Men's Club—Eloquent Speeches by Premier Rutherford, His Worship Mayor Mills and Others

Highly coincident with the promulgation in the Alberta Legislature of the first annual banquet of the Young Men's Clubs. And inasmuch as the Legislative enactment marked a highly important event in the city history of Strathcona, so was the young men's banquet a most auspicious occasion in the experience of the several clubs concerned. Auspicious not only for the reason that the evening's program was an excellent one, in all its details and settings, not only because it marked the close of a season's interesting and profitable work, but also and more largely because it had brought together as fine a company of young men as could be imagined anywhere, with such distinguished guests as the Honorable A. C. Rutherford, Premier of Alberta; the Worshipful Mayor Mills, of Strathcona, and other prominent gentlemen.

The banquet was spread in the Grand C.A.'s, was well served throughout, and reflected credit upon the caterer. The menu card was a very neat specimen of typography, and will be preserved by all present as a souvenir of the occasion. Mr. O. Bush, as chairman, lent a happy and convivial air to the proceedings, while in speech or song. All who shared in the program called forth hearty repeated applause.

After the "Good things to eat" had been well considered and the "blessed" cleared, the chairman turned to the "good list."

"The King" being duly honored, "the City of Strathcona" was toasted, to which Mayor Mills replied, expressing pride in the assemblage of fine young menhood before him, and rejoicing that Alberta's future would be in such good case.

The Hon. Mr. Rutherford responded to the toast of "Alberta," and gave a highly interesting resume of the present state of the province and of the present City of Strathcona.

The "Independent member" came next; and Alderman Rankin spoke up an aggressive word for this time of legislation. While he could no longer join in the usual words of young people, he could otherwise support them, and would gladly give them towards the erection of a building for work among young men—a display of generosity and goodwill that brought all the young fellows and their guests to their feet with three cheers and a tiger. Well, that sort of a speech although somewhat unusual at a banquet, shows how they do things in "the City."

Mr. Spencer was the next toast, and was accepted by Mr. J. B. Leavitt, who had been speaker of the Mock Parliament, in most felicitous after-dinner manner.

"Young Men's Clubs" was the last toast on the list, and called forth words both witty and wise, grave and gay.

from Mr. D. T. Alexander, Mr. R. P. Lewis and Rev. T. J. Johnston. Capital songs were sung by Messrs. A. Davies and J. G. Fiske, who were heartily cheered. Mr. O. P. McNally, in a reading, conveyed to the gathering Mr. Douglas' observations respecting a tax on lacholans, and a vocal quartet composed of the three Curtis brothers and D. Brown gave several good pieces.

At half past twelve the National Anthem closed the most interesting and enjoyable evening.

STRATHCONA CELEBRATES.

Strathcona's attainment to the dignity of a city was celebrated yesterday afternoon at the time of the prolegation of the legislature by the blowing of whistles and the ringing of bells throughout the city. By the new charter the limits have been greatly extended and the city now includes the subdivisions of Hainsdale, Rosedale, Richmond, Park, Alameda, part of the Martin estate, Strathcona place, Simpson estate, J. R. McPherson estate, the Grand estate, the Buxton and Sheppard additions and others.

BATTLEFORD AND STRATHCONA. The North Battleford Hockey team have arranged for an exhibition game of hockey in Strathcona on Tuesday evening next. It is expected that the next of the Brackman-ice series between the two cities will be played toward the latter part of next week.

The Eve of St. Patrick's
A Chat About the Celtic Fire.

BY H. H.

"Chosen Land of Bard and Chief."
The Eve of St. Patrick's—and who can deny it, the heart of the man or woman of Irish blood that for tomorrow he is to be a Celt, giving the nation's first place in his heart?

With the top of the morning of the Day of the land and the glint of the tender green spray he lifts to his head, there comes irresistibly to every man of Irish blood some thrill from memory of a day that symbolizes to us, the Celtic, the strength and the tragedy of Irish history.

There is a fine list in the hearts of Irish men and women when they take up those sprigs of green, the mystical plant of old Erin. The gleam of the green on a scold's breast means much to them.

It has a tale to tell of St. Patrick and the victory he won over the stately Druids, when he enlightened them on Christian teaching. It breathes of the long centuries through which the Motherland has cherished the memory of the saint and what he taught on Tara's hill.

It has known the heights and depths of Ireland's history. Venerated as the standards of the last British Knights, long before the birth of Christ, it saw the green standards led to wide victory in the dark fane days, its roots and leaves have served the Irishman for food, for the days of the yellowed Bannocks, it has been carried to the hottest points of the battlefield where every man felt with his face to the foe.

Mother Erin.
Just a sprig of simple green—but to us subtly eloquent of Mother Erin who is now the sparkling "dark flower" of the Irish poet, and again the lowly hearted mother drooping the bowen of children's weep.

Would you know what his Mother Erin means to that consummate looking man, at least on this one day of the year in his native West?

Then listen! It is something more than green elevator or gold dropper. The lush mother, warm, strong, imperious, bathed in green and gold, but her hands are clean and her conscience clear—she is fresh on the morning of St. Patrick's Day, laughing in the face of the sun her old Irish cheerfulness.

She is April-like—"O, dhar sheilich, the fearful she's ready to laugh when she cries." She floats grief with a wave of her hand, and dances while her heart is breaking.

No wonder her sons worship her and have gone to death with a joyful cry, wearing her colors.

She is proud, fiercely proud, even when she walks in patches. She is rich as the world counts wealth, but has poorer second riches in the spirit of her children.

"Sir Knight, they love her and of virtue more," said the maid on of the white wand, in a story that is woven with the lives of the Irish.

Erin's Children.
And as Erin is, so are her children: Meek wherever they are with some of her characteristics—gentle and tolerant, hopeful and loyal—yet, lead to the death.

And wherever they find themselves, they are the flag they fly, and they are but on that other day of the year they are wholly, happily Irish—God bless them.

And who would rebuke them for it? Perhaps no other race dwells quite as much in the past as the Irish do—but they are the better for it, because Erin's glory lies here, her records know no stain of dishonor, and the Irish retrospective mood gains only inspiration and faith to nerve his hands to their best work now.

Retrospection in no way hinders his hopeful outlook to the future—you simply cannot kill Hope in the Irish heart—on the contrary it helps to make Irishmen the world over better men.

For devotion to the memory of a high minded poet, of material things sacrificed for principle's sake, tends to the development of the higher in man.

Ireland's part! It is rich in memory, though her children are sent out with the fourteenth century, it had lasted to 2,000 years from the day of Orlan Fala the law-maker, seven centuries before the birth of Christ, and if the lords of the west end to the nation of honor, while battle, they left at least the administration of the country in the hands of their brethren (judges), their hands and physicians. Until at last the time came when an alien power dominated, and old Ireland heard to snail through tears and always to home.

Ireland's Future?
Let us leave it in the hands of God, with no other words than Bóg a Bóile's.

"Island of Bóile, Inland!" so cry dear land, to thee.

As the sun of his future rises and red dew the western sea.

Island of Bóile! Inland! For thy faith is the payment now: The suns of the future is opened, and the golden veins appear.

Thy hands are white and thy page unspiced. Reach out for the glow of the sun.

And take them from God as His room suffer the time for the fortunate and leave O. Erin, never in thy latest day, like a gem from a Syrian tomb.

THE SESSION.

The Legislature was prorogued yesterday having been exactly seven weeks in session. Seldom, if ever, has the work of a legislature been carried on with as little friction and controversy, but it is also a healthy sign for the Government that most of the criticism offered came from supporters of the administration. No member had, at any time, the slightest hesitation to raise objections to any feature of a bill with which he did not agree, and the members of the Government were always ready to give every consideration to the views of the representatives of the different constituencies.

The second session of the Alberta Legislature has been of very great importance to the Province. It has launched the Government policy of public ownership and operation of telephones, a policy that will be far-reaching in illustrating the success or failure of government ownership of public utilities. The telephone service in Alberta is about as inefficient as it possibly could be. A long-lingering public has put up with it too long, and the Government in coming to the rescue and taking the matter in hand in such a practical manner, has shown courage and business acumen that will be commended throughout the entire Province. The telephone act stands to the credit of the Minister of Public Works, whose departmental work is finding very great favor with the people of Alberta.

The Attorney-General's department has had a very large share in the work done during the session. Among the measures introduced by Mr. Cross was the Act establishing district courts, which will make for the relief of clients in law and will expedite the legal business of the Province. The passing of the Controverted Elections Act, another of his measures, was a necessary move on the part of the Government, and a duty it had no hesitation in performing. Another legal bill was the Act respecting assignments, the most important feature of which is the protection it gives to employees of an insolvent in the collection of their wages. The Statute Law Amendment Act, with which we dealt at length in yesterday's Bulletin, was another important measure of which this department had charge.

The Game Act afforded a good deal of contention and not a little amusement, but was settled in a very satisfactory manner, and will give a good measure of protection to the game in the Province. Mr. Fowler had charge of it, and there is a good deal of important legislation to the credit of his department this session. The Public Health Act belongs to him, and is one of the most important measures passed, as it forms the basis upon which the provincial authorities will in future take steps to care for that which is the most important asset any country can have, good health. The Noxious Weeds Act is also under Mr. Finlay's jurisdiction, and it will go a long way in an effort to rid the Province of a dangerous pest. Its object is to make two blades of grass where now one blade and a weed flourish. It would hardly be a Department of Agriculture without an Act respecting butter and cheese, which was duly passed.

The Provincial Treasurer had an eye to revenue this session, and as he happens to be also Minister of Education, a natural result was an Act respecting the taxation of vacant lands for educational purposes. The taxation of corporations will also be a commendable means of increasing the revenue of the Province. The Public Libraries Act is also worthy of mention.

In all some fifty Acts received the assent of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor yesterday, and the legislation thus made law in the Province reflects a healthy and creditable record to the members of the Legislature, who for the past two months have been giving their best thought and attention to the promotion of the many great interests of the new Province of Alberta.

CHILDREN'S DAY.

A picturesque feature of the prorogation of the Legislature yesterday was the presence of about 300 pupils of the McKay Avenue school. It is questionable if any ceremony of parliament in this or the old land was ever witnessed by such a juvenile audience. It is a privilege rarely accorded to see history made before their eyes, and who knows but that the ambition to fill the Premier's office may have been kindled in the breast of some embryo statesman, whose studies and action will henceforth be concentrated upon the fruition of his youthful dream.

THE HOSPITAL GRANT.

The City Council are doing the proper thing in submitting the $50,000 grant to the city hospital to the ratepayers. No amount such as this should be expended without asking the people who pay the taxes as to whether or not they favor it. The city should also have representation upon the hospital board, but only representation according to what they contribute. If the city has a $50,000 grant in a $200,000 hospital, then one-fifth of the hospital board should belong to the city, or possibly it might be a better plan to have the mayor of the city a member of the hospital board. The Chief Magistrate of the city would be really all the representation the city would require upon the board, and he would certainly be the most representative personage the city would require upon the board, and he would certainly be the most representative personage the city would require upon the board, and he would certainly be the most representative personage the city would require upon the board.

PROCLAMATION.

To the Ratepayers and Residents of the City of Edmonton.

Owing to the severity of the winter and the heavy fall of snow, garbage and refuse of all kinds has been allowed to accumulate throughout the City. With the breaking up of the winter, and the setting in of warm weather, it is feared that many portions of the City will be in an extremely unsanitary condition. The most vigorous efforts are being put forth to thoroughly clean the City, but owing to weather conditions it is feared that the undertaking cannot be successfully completed before spring. While the requirements of the Sanitary By-laws are explicit, it is felt that only by the hearty co-operation of the citizens can the situation be fully met and dealt with. To that end, I desire to call your attention to the following matters, and to express my earnest hope that every resident of the City will feel it his personal responsibility to comply with all the regulations and requests hereinafter contained.

I would urge that each household or should clean up his own premises. Ashes should be deposited in the rear of all premises. Vegetable matter, garbage and house waste, should be placed in covered containers, and containers to be placed in the rear of premises and easily accessible to the scavengers. The cans, broken glassware, crockery, etc., should be placed in boxes or other convenient receptacles. This is particularly applicable to boarding houses, restaurants and hotels, and every facility should be afforded the scavengers.

In houses where there are water works connections, but no sewer connections, no more water should be used than can be conveniently disposed of. Dirty water and slops should be scattered over ash-heaps, and not thrown indiscriminately about back yards.

I would urge the citizens to assist the officials of the sanitary department by using the blank complaint forms, which will be supplied upon application to the Sanitary Department.

Your hearty cooperation in this matter will, I feel sure, result in our being able to avoid an epidemic of disease in the Spring.

W. A. GIESBACH, Mayor.

The Grand Trunk Pacific and Prince Rupert, Its Ocean Port

Townsite Will be Offered Public in September. Question of Labor for Construction Work. Mr. Russell Anticipates no Serious Difficulty in Getting Together the 50,000 Men Needed.

Victoria, B.C., March 8.—The question of the provision of labor for the construction of the Pacific division of the Grand Trunk Pacific railway is naturally of the keenest interest here on the coast, and of some concern to the people of Canada generally. As has been again and again pointed out, so far from there being even a present surplus of labor here, many employers cry out that there is a shortage, and the development of industries in many directions is hampered by the scarcity and high price of labor. Where, then, are the fifty thousand men needed to build this great section of the G.T.P. to come from? It was the apparent difficulty of securing this vast amount of labor in a province where the labor problem is already acute that prompted one of the charges brought against the Liberals on the closing days of the recent campaign. The Grand Trunk Pacific, it was alleged, was created for the importation of fifty thousand Japs for the purpose of railway construction in British Columbia. Mr. E. C. Russell, the western construction agent of the G.T.P., formerly, it will be remembered, the manager of the Intercolonial Railway, and at present director of the United Supply and Construction Company, and this company, which thus represented the Grand Trunk Pacific, was the actual contractor for Japanese labor to this extent. The Liberals were held to be in sympathy with this project, and volungues were called upon to vote against the party that calmly contemplated and encouraged such an enterprise. Mr. Russell, however, denied that any such project was afoot, but the denial was seldom printed in newspapers making the charge. Now that the election is over and Mr. McBride is seated in power more firmly than before, one may hope to see the labor question discussed more frankly and candidly.

A Chat With Mr. Russell.
I called upon Mr. Russell the other day at his office here in Victoria, and asked him if he anticipated any difficulty in proceeding with the work of construction. "No," he replied, "we cannot overcome it. Of course there is nothing in the Japanese story. We shall, I am confident, be able to fulfill our contract and have the line ready for operation by 1911. We shall have difficulties in getting labor, of course. There have been difficulties in the east, east of the mountains, and we shall have our share. The Pacific division, extending from Prince Rupert east to Edmonton, is about 800 miles in length, and, speaking roughly, it will take about fifty thousand men to build it."

"From where do you expect to get the labor?" I asked.
"Much of it from the other side of the line—Seattle, Tacoma, and the smaller cities. A good deal, also, will come from our own towns. There will be a certain number of Japanese available."

"What about the Hindus?"
"Not them. I don't like the look of them. They are too lax in their rule, and would not make good workmen."

"I have never found any difficulty," continued Mr. Russell, "in getting such labor as has been needed out here. The men will always flock to the newest place. There are no men in the world who move about more extensively than section foremen. Ordinary labor you can always pick up. I sat over in Washington State the other day, and went through the train in which I was travelling, staid up the men. I have had a good deal of experience in such matters, and do not make many mistakes. I wanted to talk over the labor situation in that part of the country. I picked out one man who seemed a likely fellow, and got into conversation with him. I asked him after a while how many men he could get from his neighborhood at a certain figure a day, naming a fair rate of pay. He replied: 'Two hundred and fifty.' Of course we shall need Victoria and Vancouver of unskilled labor, and I should not be surprised to see a considerable rise in prices here during the period of construction."

As to the Terranians.
"When will the Terranians be placed on the market?" I asked.
"In September, according to present arrangements," replied Mr. Russell. "I can tell you anything about the details. They will be arranged in Montreal. But I understand the usual course will be followed, and a certain number of men will be simultaneously offered the public here and in Western Canada and in England."

"What about the exact location?"
"I am not able to speak as to that, but it will be determined by the report of the surveyors and engineers is," replied Mr. Russell.
"What about the statement during the recent campaign that the townsite would not be on Kaizen Island at all, but on the Indian reserve lands in the neighborhood which the rail way has bought from the Metlakatla Indians?"
"That is absurd on the face of it," Mr. Russell said. "The townsite will be on Kaizen Island—that may be taken for granted. The exact spot and the laying-out must be determined by the report of the surveyors and engineers. The western side of the island, facing the water, is a shallow bay, and until you come to the northern end, and the townsite will be at this end. The question of yards, wharves, residential land, etc., will all be determined by the natural conditions, as set down in the official reports."

Mr. Russell said that the charge brought against the G.T.P. in this connection is that it is piling a game of bluff with the public and the British Columbia Government, and is in reality preparing to plant the townsite on the mainland opposite Kaizen Island, on the Indian reserve lands. He said that the title to the 15,000 acres purchased from the Metlakatla Indians at $7.50 per acre is now, it will be remembered, on the railway has satisfied the necessary claims of the province, a great quantity, since there are 400 Indians yet on the reserve, and the tribe may linger yet for generations or centuries, and the revolutionary claims of the province are active. The transfer with the Indians was made in the Indian Department at Victoria, which in the natural course of things asked the provincial authorities if it would waive its reversionary rights. Mr. Pedley made a request of Premier McBride in September with regard to the reversionary claims of the province, and received a favorable reply. At present occasion, however, the Government of British Columbia took no action at the proposition, now in it an attempt on the part of the Dominion Government to take the province and to help the Grand Trunk Pacific in its alleged intention to defend the province of the townsite on Kaizen Island. But the Dominion Government's inquiry on the subject of the Indian Department, and enabled a title deed to be made out of it. The government that had disposed of the Indian lands at a price of $7.50 per acre against $7.50 paid by the G.T.P. for the Indian lands on the reserve, was enabled to put a champion of the province in particular his statement, there is no ulterior motive on the part of the Grand Trunk Pacific in bringing these lands adjoining Kaizen Island, and that the town of Prince Rupert will be erected on the mainland of the New Part.

As the general location of the townsite is about half way between Vancouver and Kitimat, and is about a mile north of Port Simpson, and the same distance north of Port Esquimalt, the mouth of the Skeena River. The climate is very like that of the mainland coast, though with more rain than at Vancouver, which means a disagreeable, but not a disagreeable, climate. The temperature is similar to that of Vancouver, 60 miles to the south, and rarely descends below freezing point. The conditions extend, however, only a mile inland, after which the conditions approximate that of the coast region and the region east of the mountains, and the winter season is still part of a broad government reserve, the townsite is situated on the coast, and constituting a portion of the thousand acres referred to. The title of the original G.T.P. land purchase is on the coast of the Skeena Peninsula. The Metlakatla lands, of which the G.T.P. purchased 15,000 acres, were the reservation lands.

British Columbia, are on the mainland, which drops down west of the townsite, and forms the harbor of Prince Rupert, and on Digby Island, to the west of Kaizen. The harbor is lengthened by an inlet, formerly known as Tuck's Inlet. This inlet alone is sixteen miles in length and a mile across. The entrance is deep and straight, and the harbor is completely land locked. There is already a regular service of steamers to Prince Rupert, the C.P.R. boats Skagway calling weekly, while the Union Steamship Company has a regular service to Prince Rupert with the steamer Canimook. The G.T.P. has already constructed wharves and boarding houses, one of the latter for the use of engineers and surveyors, and another for the Indians, Chinese and Japanese who are already finding employment here. There is a barber's shop here, and a 600-room hotel will be under construction immediately by an independent company. Later on the Grand Trunk Pacific will probably follow the example of the C.P.R. and erect its own hotel. The Bank of Commerce has a ready branch established, and the Bank of Montreal and the Northern Bank will follow suit immediately.

Such are the beginnings of the city which four or five years hence will be the new ocean port of Canada, and which, as many believe, is destined ultimately to surpass in population, wealth and greatness in the northwest the city of Vancouver on the Pacific. The building of the railway through the mountains and the construction of the new city will in the meantime draw the eyes of the Canadian people continually in this direction.—Toronto Globe.

District News

LAMONT

Rev. Mr. Arpue of Vegreville, filled the pulpit of the Lamont union church on Sunday morning, presiding at the annual missionary service. The subscription was very gratifying.

Thursday evening the board of trade held their regular monthly meeting and transacted some business of importance, the chief being the expediting of a committee to see that the eastern ferry was brought up the river and put in its proper place. This will fill a long felt want of the people to the north of the river.

Messrs. Fisher and Delisle are busy securing the telephone wire from Lamont to Woodville. Connections have been made with Star and already the convenience of the system in the two places is quite apparent.

The Vegreville Lumber Company have contracted with Mr. J. O. Macinnion to erect a lumber office in Lamont some thirty feet in length. The front twenty feet is to be occupied by the office.

Mr. F. H. Millard, their buying manager was in Vegreville for several days trying to locate enough lumber to fill the needs of the building trade here. So far he has been unsuccessful.

Some person with capital ought to be able to do well here, if he would put up a first class up-to-date brick making plant. For the timber is not far away, and there appears to be clay enough in the district.

Messrs. J. H. Shedd and Co. are re-modeling their store to accommodate their growing trade. D. J. Macinnion is doing the work.

Mr. J. Liles finds that he has to put an addition to his store to house the goods he finds necessary for his trade. D. J. Macinnion is to do that work also.

The Alberta Milling Co. are looking up this place as a distributing place for their flour.

The Rev. Mr. McDonald has been very successful in instituting a subordinate lodge of the Sons of Temperance in Lamont. He has already the lodge taking hold of the project that at the first meeting thirteen were initiated.

At the next meeting, and nine at the third meeting. The lodge meets every Monday evening and Rev. Mr. McDonald is the worthy patron.

Next meeting they expect a number of initiations, and an excellent program afterwards. It looks as if the anti-temperance would cause the hotel men almost to join to prevent their popularity. To the meeting at Red Deer, in the interests of the temperance cause.

The Rev. Mr. McDonald has been appointed as delegate with Mr. F. C. Smith as alternate.

The Lamont Reading Circle held their weekly meeting last Wednesday evening at Mr. W. J. Macbeth's and a very enjoyable time was spent. They are to meet at Mr. R. J. Tor's next Thursday evening.

Mrs. F. Pearce has arrived from England and Messrs. Allen Bros. are hustling to complete Mr. R. Pearce's house which is being erected near the school house.

Real estate is doing very well. Mr. F. G. Leaney purchased two lots from Mr. Joe Allen for $100.

Mr. Peter G. Leaney and Miss Leslie Garver were married lately at Lacombe. After the ceremony they returned to Lamont. A reception for the young couple was held at Mr. Wm. Garver's where a large number of friends and relatives gathered. All enjoyed themselves, and the whole community joins in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Leaney a long and prosperous married life.

Mr. A. Walker, of the firm of Walker, Read & Holmes is very busy these days getting out the telephone poles that were cut some weeks ago.

Mr. William Beasly, clerk for Messrs. Walker, Read & Holmes was married last Thursday near Woodville.

A large number of Lamont people went to his wedding reception on Wednesday evening. It was the next day before they were able to get back to Lamont and several business houses were short of assistants. All got wishing "til 'til" a successful business career and a happy married life.

Mr. P. G. Leaney secured an option last month on 110 acres of Mr. Joe Allen's land, and it is reported that he has gotten rid of it at a good advance on his purchase price.

Mr. P. C. Smith of the firm of Torrie & Smith made a trip through the country tributary to Victoria. This last week came and he came in very fast. They intend shipping the oxen and calves they are also making a large shipment to Calgary.

Mr. James Garret of Calgary, has been visiting his parents at Lamont. The trustees of this district are trying to turn the rural school district into a village district.

WINDMILL

Real estate is moving here in the right direction. Some of the highest priced and most valuable lots are being sold to intending builders. This move so early in the spring promises well.

The C.N.R. threw off a nice lot of boom today, etc., last week, which will be used on the completion of the new section house now under construction. Another fine two-story building to add to our growing town.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Park and family spent a day last week with relatives in the country.

Messrs. Bailly & Locke took a short trip out to the suburbs last Sunday. William Bros. have been fighting the wall all winter down to their G.P.F. line, but they do not look any the worse of it this spring.

The C.N.R. has increased the staff of this section and the men are doing good work under the management of Mr. Macbeth.

It is to be hoped that Messrs. Clarke, Brown & Brown will be able to start early this spring and turn over several acres of straw more with their own plough. They had to stop last fall with lots of work ahead of them.

It has been a good thing for Messrs. Brown & Brown that we are so situated that "wood" does by, for although somewhat scarce in this district it suffered from lack of fuel.

Real estate is doing very well. Mr. F. G. Leaney purchased two lots from Mr. Joe Allen for $100.

Inspector Lays Blame on Sabbath Observance Law.

Ottawa, March 15.—James D. Radie of Vero, Ont., has found the Sabbath Observance law a great hardship. He was bringing a consignment of selected imported Clydesdale animals from St. John, N.B., to Carleton Place, and through delay and the continual shouting about during last Saturday night to make room for other trains that had to be held over, two of the animals died. Both were mares with foal and were valued at well on to $1,000 apiece. Mr. Radie is one of Eastern Ontario's steadyest importers of Clydesdales and had brought this lot of fillies and mares over from Scotland. With those that died on the journey, they were worth in the neighbourhood of $10,000. The animals had just come off the ship after a two weeks' voyage, but with a quick trip overland and a rest at the end of that time would, the owner firmly believes, have easily stood the trip.

On the way up from St. John on Saturday night his train was run into yards east of Farnham, but Mr. Radie was too busy looking after the stock to forgive the name. He says that the cars were shunted and jerked about the yards nearly all night to make room for other trains. This, as every stockman knows, is harder on animals than even cold or short ration, and it was little wonder that animals perished in the box of chaos consequent to it. For this reason the owner claims that the animals would have pulled through if they had had a trip through. Out at the fair grounds Mr. Radie told his experience to some of his brother stockmen, who expressed their sympathy and also the conviction that live stock should have the privilege of a through trip.

The remainder of the some dozen or so head of horses reached their destination all right and are rolling up for the sale which is to be held at the Queen's hotel, Carleton Place, on Tuesday afternoon next, under the auspices of the Carleton Place Horse association.

Hoigs & Thompson have sold their planing mill at Saskatoon. Price $12,000. Tendere for Regina's 70,000 square yards of permanent pavements to be laid this year have been let. The work complete will cost $200,000.

"Farthest North" for Mooney's Perfection Cream Sodas

Cities and towns do not confine the demand for Mooney's Perfection Cream Sodas. Away to the frozen Arctic, 1,000 miles north of the railroads—"huskies" carried a load of these delicacies for the northern traders last winter.

And after their 3,000 mile journey, these biscuits were just as fresh and crisp—just as inviting and tasty—as they were when they left the ovens at Stratford.

Wherever there is civilization, there is the demand for Mooney's Perfection Cream Sodas.

PRINCE RUPERT SUBURBAN LOTS.

FOR SALE BY THE OWNER:

A remainder of 33 LOTS in the only sub-division yet made at or near the Pacific Coast terminus of the G.T.P.; located on a beautiful gentle slope overlooking the Railway Company's town site, and less than two miles distant across the harbor. Three of these are water-fronts, which will bring a big price for business purposes as soon as business is commenced in the new City next fall. All others are large building lots, with 50 foot frontage on good wide streets, and are nearly all view lots.

From all information obtainable it is almost certain that the G.T.P. cannot possibly have their Prince Rupert town site ready for sale until next fall, and thousands of people are preparing to go there and gobble up everything in sight when the time comes. This is therefore an exceptional opportunity to get in at first prices before the owner of these lots also owns or controls the only Prince Rupert in the hands of anyone outside the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Co., all of which will be sold exclusively from Seattle and other coast points.

PRICES FROM $200.00 UP.
